Water Features

One of the most exciting features of the ranch is that it is located on Fall River with over 4100 feet of frontage. Fall River is approximately 17 miles in length. Although the river itself is open to the public, almost every foot of river bank frontage is privately held. Public access to the river is difficult and very limited.

“There’s tremendous value in owning land, particularly on streams and rivers,” says Paul Slivon, a San Francisco investment advisor who owns a roughly 200- acre ranch near Steamboat, Colo. “There are some places where you can’t get access to that water unless you own it. That’s a big deal. They can build new golf courses, but they can’t build new rivers.”

FALL RIVER - WORLD CLASS FISHING

"IT IS THE NATION'S largest spring system, creating a wonderland of crystal-clear, 50-degree rainbow trout habitat. At the same time it is both the finest spring creek fly fishing opportunity in California and one of the best in the United States. It is certainly the angling showpiece of the entire Shasta Cascade region and one of the richest spring fed rivers in the world."
